Letter no.1. The first letter in the series, the one that started it all. I wrote this letter to an old friend, a friend-no-longer, on the first day of this month. Yet, I never sent it. All month it played on my mind, and I debated with myself about whether I should send it or not. In the end, the best decision was to never send it.

No. 1: The Letter. Mother is 94 years old. Her mind is as sharp as ever, as is her tongue. ‘Your stomach is larger than your father’s when he had his stroke. If you don’t do something soon, you’ll go the same way,’ she says. She reserves her lectures for me. Everyone else gets a grey-age, charm offensive.
